Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 23-27 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Mills (4,852,896). Mills ('896) discloses a rack comprising a first rack (112 and 108) for releasably retaining golf clubs; a second rack portion (124) attaching with a golf ball holder (156), see Figures 1 and 2; the golf ball holder (156) is releasably attached to the second rack portion, see Figure 12, and has an elongated body with an open top and a central space to receive a plurality of balls therein, the holder also has an elongated slot provided along the length of the holder so that a user can determine how many balls are present in the holder; the first rack comprises an upper portion (112) and a lower portion (108) being configured to receive golf clubs; the upper portion having at least one opening (114) registers with a lower opening (110) on the lower portion (108), see Figure 6, for supporting the golf clubs in an upright position. The rack of Mills is for holding golf balls and golf clubs. However, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention was made to use the rack of Mills to hold billiard balls and billiard cues instead of holding golf balls and golf clubs in order to enable to transport billiard balls and billiard cues from one place to another and to enable the stored billiard cues to be rotated for selection purposes. Further, it should be noted in a product claim, it is well established that it is the patentability of the product and not how such product is intended to be used that is to be determined.

Response to Amendment

Applicants' arguments filed on August 16, 2004 have been fully considered but they are not deemed to be persuasive.

With respect to applicant's arguments that the holder of Mills ('896) is removable does not make it releasable, the examiner respectfully disagrees. It should be noted that "releasably" have a common meaning with "removable" since both terms define set free from restraint. Accordingly, the word "releasable" fails to set forth a distinction to overcome the rejection of Mills.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

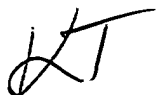

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
